Who is Microsoft fooling when they promise to give 1 Billion in cash and software to the poorest schools in the nation? Don't our children deserve the best? By the time the software gets to our schools it will almost certainly be outdated. Why not just give the American education system 1 Billiion dollars in cash. That way the neediest schools can choose their own operating system. Maybe an operating system that is more stable than the Windows platform. Remember our children deserve the best. Sincerely, Mr. RJ Carswell
